

RECESSION THERAPY

Don't cry in your beer.
When a crisis strikes,
there's a perfect cocktail
to ease the pain.

Crisis:

You have been saving for months for that weekend away and you just came back from the post office with today's mail. You open your gas bill and it says you owe $559.00 - OMG! Don't fret, have a Margarita and pretend your on an island with Jimmy Buffet

Pineapple Juice

Crisis:

You're cruising home from work when the road suddenly gets extremely bumpy and rough. You get out of your car and to your horror and dispare you realize you have a flat tire...and you don't have a spare. This minor crisis calls for a Coconut Punch...after all you'll need to wait for a ride.

RECESSION THERAPY

Crisis:

Your lost your wallet and you feel like the world is crumbling to the ground. Who knew losing a few pieces of plastic would cause such a trauma in one's life? To make it worse...the bank just called to say that some jerk just bought himself a new Harley with those same pieces of plastic! Take a deep breath and remember that money can't buy happiness and thats good cuz you don't have any... Call the friend you bought the drink for last week and ask her to come share a bottle of wine with you. - Her turn

Crisis:

Your credit card bill just arrived. You somewhat forgot about your little splurge at Sephora's, but the credit card company didn't. On your way back to return that great little eyeshadow you'll probably never wear anyway, put that money to go use and get yourself a "Sweeteani". Its so decadent and sweet you'll forget all about those ridiculously high interest rates.

Crisis:

Your car breaks down and your friendly neighborhood mechanic tells you it'll cost a grand to get you up and running again. Instead of walking home to sulk and feeling screwed, stop at Gunners for a "Peach-Pear-Millionaire" Maybe you'll even feel like one.
